Ireland All-American

Women Spikers Runner-up In Nation

BY DREW FINNIE

The trophy reads "1981 NCAA Division III Volleyball Championship—Second Place." And that's a perfect description of the final result of the most successful season in the five year history of volleyball at Juniata College.

Coach Larry Bock and his charges, affectionately known as "Larry's Ladies," took the volleyball world by storm and made a most impressive showing in the first-ever NCAA national championship tournament.

Besides the NCAA's, the Indian spikers won their first-ever Middle Atlantic Conference crown and also took the Wheeling Tournament and Mansfield Tournament titles. With a final 38-6 mark, the team finished with one of the best athletic records ever posted at Juniata.

With such an outstanding season it's easy to overlook the fact that Juniata's NCAA accomplishment is almost comparable to the U.S. Olympic Hockey victory. That's because virtually all of the major talent in college volleyball is in California. And, most of the Division III schools there compete mainly against Division I and II teams. Juniata, on the other hand, did not play a single match against a Division I team and played only a handful against Division II competition.

So it was something of a surprise when the NCAA Tournament Committee awarded the Indians a home berth in the quarterfinals and seeded them second.

Juniata's opponent was California State-Stanislaus from Turlock, CA. The Warriors came into the match with an 8-14 record but that was misleading since most of their losses were to Division I teams.

The first game of the best-of-five match was a see-saw affair until the Tribe put it away 15-12. In the second game, Juniata got off to a 8-0 lead before Stanislaus woke up. Then, the Warriors battled back to a 10-11 score. But the Indians regained their composure and took the second game 15-12. Another 15-12 effort gave the Tribe the Mid-Atlantic Regional championship.

"This was a tremendous team effort," Coach Bock said after the match. "We were aggressive, even our errors were aggressive. This is a big move forward for Eastern volleyball and I'm thrilled Juniata is the one to do it."

With the victory, it was on to Maryville, Tenn. for the NCAA Final Four with Illinois Benedictine, upset winner of the Southeast Regional; Occidental, upset winner of the Midwest Regional; and California-San Diego, winner of the Southwest Regional and top seed.

In the semi-final match, Juniata got off to a hot start against Benedictine, taking the first two games 15-11 and 17-15. Then, the spikers lost their composure and Illinois took the next two 15-11 and 15-10. In the final game, the Indians had to come from behind to win 15-13. Juniata had made it to the championship match against Cal-San Diego.

Up to this point, most felt Juniata had been lucky and that now San Diego would blow the Indians off the court. But after JC won the first game 15-12, all of the doubters were made believers. San Diego took the next two games, 15-5 and 15-7. But "Larry's Ladies" wouldn't give up and won an intense fourth game 17-15. But the Tritons were too tough. They took the fifth game 15-1 and the title, leaving the Tribe as the national runner-up.

"Our kids played superbly," declared a happy Bock, "but San Diego was the better team. They're a very powerful team, much taller and

Menotti's Amahl Returns to Juniata College

Amahl and the Night Visitor, a one-act opera by Gian-Carlo Menotti, was this year's Christmas production staged in Oller Hall Dec. 11 and 12. The production was performed by the Juniata Concert Choir and the Nittany Valley Chamber Orchestra, and featured solo performances by several students.

First performed at Juniata 15 years ago, the Christmas story is seen through the imagination of a young hero, Amahl, and focuses on the Mother, the three kings, the visit of the shepherds, the theft of the gold and the "miracle." Combined with the music, the production brought to life the joy and wonder of Christmas.

Amahl was played by Kelly Walasik, a senior accounting and finance major from Aliquippa. A four-year member of the concert choir, Miss Walasik was a soloist in last year's production of Handel's Messiah. She has also given a vocal recital at Juniata.

Marjorie E. Hirsch, instructional assistant in music, portrayed Amahl's mother. A graduate of the University of Southern California, Mrs. Hirsch, a mezzo-soprano, has also studied at El Camino College and the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music. She has performed major roles with the U.S.C. Opera Theatre, Long Beach Civic Opera and Downey Symphony Orchestra.

The role of King Kaspar was played by junior geology major Miguel Esteban of Sewickly. He was a soloist in the Messiah, and has had lead roles in productions of Jesus Christ Superstar and Bernstein's Mass. Esteban has had extensive vocal training and has made two guest appearances on television's "AM Pittsburgh."

King Melchior was played by James Ways (Dec. 11) and David Molchany (Dec. 12). Ways, a junior biology major from Pittsburgh, has been a choir member for three years. Molchany, another three-year choir member, is a junior business major from Johnstown. He performed the baritone solos in last year's Messiah.

Jay Hinish, a member of the concert choir and the "J.C. Four," portrayed King Balthazar. Hinish is a junior geology major from Martinsburg.

The page to the Kings was played by Andrew Nimick, a senior pre-law major from Kingwood, Tex. He has performed in productions of Godspell, Jesus Christ Superstar, Mass and You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown.

Sarah Nelling, a senior communications major from Chambersburg, Joseph DePra, a junior pre-medicine major from Johnstown, and Joseph Whitacre, a sophomore physics major from York Springs, played the shepherd dancers. All three have extensive musical backgrounds.

The main performers in the production were backed by the Chorus of Shepherds, made up of members of the Juniata Concert Choir.

Amahl and the Night Visitor was directed by Bruce A. Hirsch, associate professor of music, and Marjorie E. Hirsch. The production coordinator was Doris P. Goehring, assistant professor of speech and theatre. Carole Thompson, a former physical education instructor at Juniata, served as choreographer.

David Molchany, Miguel Esteban, Andrew Nimick, Jay Hinish, Marjorie Hirsch and Kelly Walasik in the December performance of Amahl and the Night Visitor.

Kaylor Publishes Brethren History

According to Dr. Earl C. Kaylor, Jr., early Brethren in Pennsylvania's interior counties liberated their denomination from its sectarian past.

Dr. Kaylor, professor of religion and history, and history department chairman, makes this argument in his latest book, "Out of the Wilderness," The Brethren and Two Centuries of Life in Central Pennsylvania (1780-1980).

The author states that these Brethren pioneers and their descendants were in the vanguard of those who wanted to shift the Brethren mentality from an anti-societal stance, to one more sympathetic to the Quaker position: the redeemability of society.

"They exerted a formative influence on all areas of internal reforms: the press, education, city and town missions, women's groups and political improvement," Dr. Kaylor said. He added that the name, "Church of the Brethren," was introduced and publicized in Central Pennsylvania long before it won general acceptance in 1908.

A native of Greensburg, Dr. Kaylor received his B.A. degree from Juniata in 1946. He also holds a B.D. degree cum laude, from Bethany Theological Seminary, an M.A. degree from the University of Notre Dame, and received his Ph.D. in U.S. social and intellectual history from the Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Kaylor began teaching at Juniata in 1958, and is currently the faculty marshal. In 1969, he was named the Charles A. Dana Supported Professor of History and Religion. An avid writer, Dr. Kaylor is the author of "Truth Sets Free: A Centennial History of Juniata College, 1876-1976." He is currently writing a biography on Martin G. Brumbaugh, Governor of Pennsylvania from 1915-19, and past president of Juniata College.

Locally, Dr. Kaylor is a frequent speaker at civic, church and service club meetings. He has been active in the Rotary Club and the United Way, and is a member of the Huntingdon Area School Board.

In explaining the title of his new book, "Out of the Wilderness," Dr. Kaylor said, "It brings to mind three symbols, all applicable to the impact the Brethren of Central Pennsylvania had on their church: Pioneering, prophetic mission, and learning. Each represents progress, each typifies deliverance from a 'wilderness' condition, whether it be terrestrial, spiritual or cultural."

The British Are Coming, The British Are Coming

The British are coming to Juniata!

Through a program sponsored by Saga International Holidays, Ltd., this summer Juniata will host a different group of British tourists each week for 10 weeks. The tourists, all over age 60, will stay in campus housing while visiting such Pennsylvania sites as Hershey, Gettysburg, the Big Valley and Penn's Cave.

"This is quite an honor for Juniata," said President Binder. "For several years, Juniata has participated in the Elderhostel program, which has been very successful. Because of Juniata's experience with such programs, Saga representatives contacted us about

Admission Applications Increase

The good news about Juniata is spreading! Inquiries and applications are up. More children and grandchildren of alumni are coming to Juniata too, but we still want more.

Juniata maintains a warm spot in its heart for alumni children and grandchildren. At present, there are 52 students on campus with alumni parents. Referring such students to Juniata is another important way alumni support the college.

Although the number of college-bound students declines each year, student inquiries and applications at Juniata have been increasing at a substantial rate, according to figures released by the Office of Planning and Institutional Research.

During 1977-78 for example, the Office of Admissions received 6,444 student inquiries resulting in 1,097 actual applications. In 1980-81, inquiries rose to 15,017 with 1,450 actual applications for a freshman class of 425.

The increase in inquiries and applications also have resulted in an increase in the academic "quality" of the average student admitted. In 1977-78, the average combined SAT score of new students was 996. In 1980-81, it was up to 1040. Compared to the national mean combined score of 897 (1978) and 890 (1981), Juniata students are doing quite well.

But SAT scores are not the only thing that has increased at Juniata. Class rank is up too. In 1977-78, 74 percent of the students were in the top two-fifths of their high school class. For 1980-81, the figure was 90 percent, including 10 class valedictorians and six salutatorians.

These facts show that Juniata maintains a high visibility among high school students, and continues to be very competitive, a tribute to the college's strong admissions program.

So talk to your children and grandchildren about Juniata's programs. Urge them to study hard. And most of all, bring them to campus for a visit. You'll both be glad you did!

hosting the British groups," he added.

The Juniata tour, illustrated with a photograph of The Cloister, is featured in the 1982 Saga brochure sent to groups throughout Great Britain. It states, in part "Juniata College is ideal for a Saga university holiday. It's located in a scenic mountain area with a classic tree-lined campus in a quiet, residential section of Huntingdon. The campus makes an excellent center for excursions to the many points of interest in beautiful central Pennsylvania."

Approximately 45 British visitors will be on campus each week from June 5 to August 14.

2 + 2 Program Set

Juniata and the College of Allied Health Sciences (CAHS) of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia have entered into a unique transfer program agreement for students interested in nursing and other allied health professions.

According to President Frederick M. Binder, discussions leading to the establishment of this program have been underway for some time.

"This transfer program is targeted to freshmen and sophomores," Dr. Binder said. "Students interested in the program will enroll at Juniata for two years of liberal arts and health sciences studies to prepare them to meet Jefferson's admissions requirements. They will then spend their junior and senior years at Jefferson, completing their studies for a B.S. degree in a health science profession such as nursing, medical technology, radiologic technology, dental hygiene, cytotechnology, physical therapy or occupational therapy."

The College of Allied Health Sciences is Jefferson's academic division for undergraduate education in the health-related professions. A faculty member from both CAHS and Juniata serve as an advocate and advisor for students in the program, and as a liaison with the admissions staff at Jefferson.

"For students, the advantages of this program are tremendous," Dr. Binder said. "Through this transfer program with Jefferson, the liberal arts/health sciences education at Juniata will be complemented by the specialized and professional allied health curricula at the College of Allied Health Sciences."

Dr. Binder pointed out that because the program streamlines the transfer process considerably, Jefferson can more quickly and efficiently facilitate the admissions process for Juniata students.

Students interested in obtaining more information about this new program are invited to contact Juniata's admissions office.

Chemistry Gets Scientific Unit

It's called a liquid scintillation counter, a complicated name for a complex piece of scientific equipment.

Juniata's chemistry department recently acquired one of these advanced devices thanks to Howard P. Angstadt '57, an employee of Sun Tech, the research arm of the Sun Oil Company, who arranged to have the surplus instrument donated to the college.

According to Dr. Donald J. Mitchell, associate professor of chemistry and department chairman, a liquid scintillation counter is used when working with radioactive isotopes, among other things. It allows scientists to label the beginning material in a chemical reaction, and to see where elements end up after the reaction is finished.

Mitchell added that in systems that are too complicated to follow, the liquid scintillation counter makes it possible to label beginning and end materials.

"This is a valuable addition to the college, and will be used in a variety of research projects being conducted by both students and faculty," Mitchell said. "We are very grateful to Howard for arranging this donation."

Angstadt and his wife Carol (Newborg '57), a chemistry professor at Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital in Philadelphia, reside in Media.

Eleven MAC All-Stars

Indians Cop Share of League Title

The Juniata football team has finally made believers out of everyone. With a team that was supposed to finish no better than third in the Middle Atlantic Conference North League, the Indians captured a share of the league title and placed eleven players on the MAC-North All-Star team.

In addition, split end Eric Biddle (Yardley, Pennsbury) was named the league's Player of the Year and Indian Coach Rob Ash was named "Coach of the Year." And, to top things off, four of Juniata's MAC All-Stars were also named to the prestigious ECAC South All-Star squad.

Juniata finished the season with a 6-2-1 overall mark. The Tribe's 6-1 MAC record matched that of Delaware Valley, a team the Indians had defeated 10-0 earlier in the year. However, because the league no longer recognizes any tie-breaking formula, the two schools were declared co-champions. Still, sharing the title does not diminish the Indians' accomplishments this year.

"This title is tremendously important to our program," said Coach Ash. "Hopefully, it marks a return to excellence for the Indian football program. I see a rejuvenation of a winning attitude and an interest in the team that makes the future bright for Juniata football."

Five Indians were named to the All-MAC offensive squad: wide receiver Eric Biddle; tackle Pat Quint (Pittsburgh, Penn Hills); center Guy Bennardo (Vandergrift, Kiski); quarterback Mike Nett (Gettysburg); and running back Rick Eberly (Ephrata, Conestoga Valley). Guard John Widener (Butler) was named an honorable mention pick.

On the All-MAC defensive squad were: lineman Matt Blauch (Palmyra); linebacker Tom McVay (Pittsburgh, Penn Hills); and defensive back Tom Devine (Monroeville, Gateway). Defensive back Jeff Miles (Julian, Bald Eagle Area) and defensive end Kevin Morrow (Butler) were named MAC honorable mentions.

About two weeks later, Biddle, Bennardo, Blauch and Devine were named to the Eastern College Athletic Conference Division III South All-Star Team. The ECAC squad, which is chosen by the head coaches of the Conference teams located in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and Washington, DC, was announced by ECAC Commissioner Scotty Whitelaw.

The award and honors that have been heaped on this year's grid team are the most visible signs of the success that has accompanied the Indians all season. A complete accounting shows the 1981 football Indians as the most successful JC 11 since the 1973 team that went to the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl and finished as the national runners-up. Not since then have so many Juniata football players been honored by both the MAC and ECAC. And, Rob Ash's MAC "Coach of the Year" award is the first by a JC grid head coach.

Ash himself feels much of the credit for this season's accomplishments can be taken by two groups of people — one is his corps of assistants and the other is the group of senior players who gave the team a solid foundation of leadership.

"This championship is a tribute to both our coaches and senior players," Ash noted. "I have a tremendous amount of respect for Tom Rogish (defensive coordinator). Our defense was the best prepared week in and week out in the MAC. Tom wasn't satisfied until everything was in order.

"Our part-time assistant coaches also did a great job. John McDonald, John Schonewolf and Tom Gibboney molded the offense while Angelo Ciarrocca and Steve Lach helped Tom Rogish guide the defense. Steve and Tom (Gibboney) were our scouts this year and they both gave us excellent reports each week. They both made sacrifices in that neither got to see the team play more than twice all year."

Ash also has much praise for this year's senior players.

"Our seniors were some of the most talented and dedicated players a coach could want," the JC mentor said. "Their efforts made all the coaches' jobs much easier.

"As a group, we asked a great deal of them because in their junior year, my first here at Juniata, they were asked to learn a new system. All of them responded without question. They worked hard and were always ready to play. Each one of them gave us outstanding leadership and that was followed by all our players."

Graduating this year are defensive starters Jeff Miles, Tom Devine, Mike Ford (Richmond, IN; Cumberland Valley, PA), Kevin Morrow, Matt

Blauch, Dan Jendrzewski (Natrona, Highlands), and Bobby Edwards (Meyersdale). Graduating from the offensive squad are Guy Bennardo, Mike Nett, Eric Biddle and Tom Bell (Vineland, NJ). Ed McEwen (Huntingdon) handled the punting and kickoffs while Pat Davis (Clearfield), Terry Heffner (Huntingdon), and Ron Shaffer (Selinsgrove) made important contributions before being injured.

With the end of the 1981 season, thoughts have already turned to next year. Both Ash and Rogish have been on the road for most of the last four weeks looking for next year's freshmen.

Coach Ash said it best just before he left campus for his first recruiting trip: "The season ended on Saturday and within 48 hours we're already on the road, shaking the bushes for next year's freshmen. I hope we'll find some good fruit."

Senior quarterback Mike Nett sets to roll out behind the protection of his offensive line against Widener in the season opener.

Soccer team captain Jeff Dougherty presents a ball signed by every member of the 1981 team to President Frederick M. Binder as Athletic Director William F. Berrier '60, looks on. The four wins posted by this year's squad are the first in the team's history.

THE BEST OF YUGOSLAVIA JUNIATA COLLEGE'S 54TH TOUR

TWO WEEKS AUGUST 15-29, 1982 PRESIDENT FREDERICK M. AND GRACE B. BINDER, HOSTS

Fred and Grace Binder and their younger daughter, Roberta, lived in Yugoslavia for one year: half in Beograd and half in Ljubljana. Fred was Fulbright Lecturer in American History — the first appointed in that discipline to the Socialist Republic of Yugoslavia. He lectured at the Universities of Beograd, Nis, Skopje, Advanced Schools of Politics and Economics (Beograd) and Zagreb, and taught for one semester at the University of Ljubljana. Having traveled extensively throughout the country — 12,000 miles — he knows the land, history and peoples well. Presently serving on the U.S.-Yugoslavia University Professor Exchange Commission of the American Council of Education, he recently returned from a 10-day trip to Yugoslavia, where he attended an international conference sponsored by the University of Zagreb at Dubrovnik. In addition, he has written a spy novel set in Yugoslavia under the assumed name of Andrew Moore: THE SERBIAN ASSIGNMENT, Apollo Books, 1971.
